

Buying Goods in China and Shipping Container to the USA – Globy.Com Freight Calculator

December 12, 2024

Recent research shows that China is the world leader in GDP (in purchasing power standards). These achievements are not final, as every year the Chinese economy shows growth of about 8-10%, ahead of its competitors India and the United States. The influx of foreign investment over the past 5 years and the expansion of exports have led to a new acceleration of economic growth. The country is a leader in terms of mining capacity. At the same time, huge volumes of construction materials are produced in China. The country manufactures machine tools, power tools, trucks, heavy cranes, technological equipment, and much more.

The availability of free economic zones makes it possible to reduce product prices; as a result, China has become the center of Asian trade. If you go to Globy, you will see a large number of suppliers from the mentioned country. You are invited to choose a product and negotiate with the vendor about the price and volume of the batch. After that, the cargo will be sent by ocean route. You will probably want to know the approximate shipping price. This is possible if you use the instant freight calculator. You would need to find out the port of shipment and decide where you will receive the cargo. Also, you need to specify the date and type of container. Your products can be placed in different boxes or in one. Next, we talk in detail about Globy and other B2B marketplaces and list their advantages.

Advantages of B2B Marketplace Today

If you want to purchase a large batch of goods in China, then it is best for you to go to the B2B marketplace website and familiarize yourself with the assortment. It may happen that you do not find the right product. In this case, you can place a request on Globy and wait for the suppliers to find you themselves.

Practice shows that it is most profitable to cooperate with official distributors – that is, with intermediary companies that are directly related to the manufacturer of the product. In this case, the quality will be excellent, and the price will remain minimal. As a rule, resellers inflate prices, but this is not prohibited on B2B marketplaces. You can try to speculate yourself; to do this, you need to issue product cards and make a description.

Make sure that the product data corresponds to reality. If you are a novice vendor on Globy, then you can get a free promotion at first: your product cards will appear on social media and in search engines. You should not forget about advertising, as the success of your campaign depends on it. The more people find out about your company, the greater your chances of selling the product profitably. When registering, you must specify the direction of your activity: buyer, logistician, seller, or manufacturer. If you have any questions, you can ask Globy specialists in an online chat. To date, the following advantages of the platform can be distinguished:

- easy and fast registration;
- a convenient and simple website;
- a large selection of different products;
- no commission;
- profitable trade with China.

Free Logistics Tool

There is often a situation when the buyer needs to know the approximate cost of transporting cargo from China to North America. This problem is solved quite simply: you can go to the Globy website, go to the “Logistics solutions” tab, and select the “Quick Logistics” tool. This calculator will allow you to get current freight rates. These data are not accurate, so it is recommended that the charterer be contacted directly for clarification. You should remember that there is always an alternative: if the price offered by one carrier does not suit you, then you can turn to another.

It is important that all transportation conditions are met. If the cargo is fragile, then special markings must be applied to the packaging and container. If you find that the cargo is damaged, then you can file a complaint and request a cancellation. The supplier is responsible for the safety of the goods and insures the cargo. It is most profitable to buy goods in China. According to statistics, most container ships arrive in the United States from China.