

Nanjing Port automobile terminal approved for export trade

As Chinese automobile exports continue to boom a new terminal has opened for international trade.

Katherine Si, China Correspondent

February 7, 2025

Credit: Nanjing Port

Jiangsheng Automobile Terminal of Nanjing Port is newly approved to be used for providing foreign trade services of automobiles.

Jiangsheng Automobile Terminal, currently has two ro-ro berths with a designed annual handling capacity of 400,000 units of vehicle. The enlarged service range of the terminal will offer direct automobile exports for cities in Jiangsu province.

In 2024, Jiangsheng automobile terminal posted a throughput of over 190,000 units of vehicles.

At the end of 2024, the largest ro-ro automobile terminal in Yangtze river went into operation in Taicang port, also in Jiangsu province, providing a new export solution for China-made automobile brands.